Railroad companies operating ferries between New York and Jersey City are considering an increase in fares, it was learned yesterday. Originally they are said to have intended to raise the fares August 26, when the higher railroad rates authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission went into effect.

A New Jersey statute, however, gives sponded to This Year's Appeal In 1919, after September 1, contrib-

the work might be carried somewhat further in 1920 than in 1919, that more children might be given vacations. And plans were laid accordingly.

This meant that, while in 1919 the fund found it necessary to refuse some invitations from country hosts and also to shorten the season at two of its vacation homes, it felt safe in accepting all invitations from hosts and continuing all its homes in operation for the full season in 1920.

In taking this action of course take utors to the Fresh Air Fund gave in support of its work only about $1,500. This year the fund must have more than that in order to close up the work than that in order to close up the work and pay its bills. It must have as a minimum, in addition to money already received, $5,000—more than three times the amount received in 1919.

Why is this money needed?

Because there are to-day—and will be until the latter part of next week—765 children, boys and girls, spending vacations at the fund's various vacation homes. And their vacations have not yet been paid for.

The children cannot pay for them. Scarcely a single one of the 765 could contribute more than a dime toward the expense of his outing. The fund cannot pay for them—except by falling back on its one resource, the Friends of Children. It has no other resources.

Will you come to the rescue. Friends of Children? There are at least 1,500 of you who proved no longer ago than last year that you were friends of The Tribung Fund's children, but who haven't shown the sign of continued friendship this year.

If only half of you will each pay for one vacation at $7 The Tribune Fund's firancial problems for 1920 will be solved.

Is the fact that the fund comes down

Is the fact that the fund comes down to September 1 with 765 vacations unpaid for a sign that it has overreached itself in its work? Not a bit. If the fund never sent out a boy or a girl for a vacation until the money to pay for that vacation was actually in hand, children would travel slowly to the country. The fund has to make the arrangements for vacations provided in July almost before any money is received. It has to base its plans for August on receipts and costs for July of the current year, compared with

A New Jersey statute, however, gives jurisdiction over ferry charges to the county boards of freeholders, and the railroads were advised by their legal staffs to take no steps in the matter until the lawyers had gone over the matter carefully to see whether the order of the commission might be held to take precedence over any action that the county freeholders might take.
